

Crossing the Gender Line - Statement List

- I identify as a man
(Say “Notice who is with you, notice who is not, please step back.” -- continue this between each statement)
- I identify as a woman
- I identify as transgender
- I identify as genderqueer
- I identify as genderfluid
- I identify with a gender that was not mentioned (ask if they’d like to share)
- I have a friend who I know is transgender
- My gender dictates the type of clothes I wear and how I behave around others
- My gender has no influence on how I dress and act
- I believe men are inherently better at math and hard sciences
- I believe women are inherently more empathetic and sensitive
- I believe transgender people are confused
- Regarding gender, I believe our society gives everyone an equal shot at success and happiness
- I have been around others who made a transphobic comment and said nothing
- The idea of an intersex person (sometimes incorrectly called a “hermaphrodite”) makes me uncomfortable
- I would prefer to know if someone was transgender before dating them
- I would not be comfortable being in a romantic relationship with someone who is transgender
- My parents would not be comfortable with me dating someone who was transgender
- I believe that the world is an accepting place for people who are transgender
- My gender would never impact the type of occupation I thought I could pursue
- I would never be afraid of being fired from a job, or not hired in the first place, as a result of my employer learning what my gender was
- My gender does not make me afraid of experiencing physical violence
- I would be afraid to tell my family if I was transgender
- I would be afraid to tell my friends if I was transgender
- Every day, I am aware of my gender and how it shapes my life

